NDCers: I am delighted to announce your successful retirement of the 352M page backlog. The last box was completed today under the watchful guise of Cynthia C and Charles S, and it was, fittingly, a team effort by five Navy reviewers. I will be passing the good work up the NARA chain and over to our declassification community partners, and the formal announcement will be made in the coming days by the appropriate NARA and White House leadership. You should know that the sustained effort you made supporting this mission never went unnoticed. That the hours you put in, the laps you ran on those hard stack floors, the heavy boxes you hoisted, the eyestrain you suffered from 60-year-old onionskin copies, none of that was wasted. Your work will be directly responsible for providing access to historical records of all types and topics to the American people.

We always knew we could do this, didn't we?
Happy New Year!

Sheryl
